

The year in review

PUBLICATIONS

During the period under review, the book entitled 'The Land Question in South Africa: the challenge of transformation and redistribution' was completed. This book was based on selected contributions that had been delivered at the land conference organised by the Trust in 2004 and was edited by Lungisile Ntsebeza and Ruth Hall. The book contains chapters by leading South African and international experts on land matters. Book launches were held in Cape Town in October 2006 and in Johannesburg in November 2006 and were well attended.

Technology and Media

The Trust's new website was launched in June 2006. The home page of the website highlights recent and forthcoming events in all centres. There is now a complete listing of all Trust events (since 1998) including access to full-text papers, where these are available. The website forms the backbone of the publishing and dissemination of the outputs of all activities. Visitors to the site can browse through papers, transcripts, reports and articles of interest by year and by centre, and can add their details to the mailing list. The web site will be updated regularly, and expanded as new programmes arise.

The Trust continues to engage with the media and hope to have more solid relationships in place in 2007 in two main ways - by publishing a supplement following a colloquium in a national newspaper in order to disseminate the activities to the general public and by starting on the radio series project that has been under discussion for some time.

Forget

Site map

Add your name to the mailing list

- Home
- Dialogue events
- Publishing
- People
- About the Trust
 - Brief history
 - Harold Wolpe
- Search

About the Harold Wolpe Memorial Trust

The fundamental aim of the Trust is to foster critical intellectual thinking, writing, debate and discussion on themes related to social, political, economic and cultural conditions, including their historical genesis and their change, development and transformation. In pursuit of this aim, the key objectives of the Trust are:

- To create the intellectual space for policy makers, academics, non-governmental organisations and civil society to conduct a critical dialogue, exchange ideas, and debate and discuss key issues
- To publish and disseminate the ideas and outcomes of this dialogue and exchange of ideas, and
- To support and partner projects committed to a tradition of critical inquiry and debate.

A fourth objective of the Trust is to create a sustainable organisation that is capable of contributing towards the broader aim in the future.

Follow the links on the left to read more about the history of the Trust, and about Harold Wolpe.

Vision and mission statement

The Harold Wolpe Memorial Trust is committed to the development of a more humane and democratic society based on justice, equity, freedom of expression, and social values.

Contact us
 Harold Wolpe Memorial Trust
 Unit F
 Colstine Terrace
 88 Belvedere Rd
 CLAREMONT
 7708
 Tel: +27 21 674 4542

top job, Tutu tells Zuma

DOMINIQUE HERMAN

IF Jacob Zuma loved South Africa, the best action he could take was not to participate in the presidential succession race, said Archbishop Emeritus Desmond Tutu at a Harold Wolpe Memorial Lecture last night.

Tutu was addressing a packed venue in the Whale Well at the Iziko SA Museum that included deputy foreign affairs minister Aziz Pahad, Independent Democrats leader Patricia Zuma had made irresponsible comments about HIV. Archbishop Desmond Tutu said during his trial (such as taking a shower after sex to count as protection against contracting HIV) in the midst of SA's Aids pandemic.

"The best thing he could do is to elect not to take part in the presidential succession race if he loves the country," Tutu said, adding that a leader cared about the wellbeing of the people and not his/her "self-aggrandisement".

A real, true leader demonstrated "selfless altruism". "During the days of